- Recognized for sustainability on DJSI for 13 consecutive years

ABBOTT PARK, Ill., Sept. 7, 2017 / PRNewswire/ -- For the fifth consecutive year, Abbott (NYSE: ABT) has been named the leading company in its industry by the Dow Jones Sustainability Index (DJSI), one of the most prestigious global benchmarks for corporate sustainability and responsibility. As the Industry Group Leader in Health Care Equipment & Services, Abbott is the only U.S.-based company of the 24 recognized for leading their respective global industry groups.

The DJSI designation recognizes companies with outstanding efforts in the areas of economic, environmental and social sustainability, with a strong focus on long-term shareholder value. Leaders are chosen from among more than 3,400 of the largest companies worldwide, including companies in developed and emerging markets. This is the 13th consecutive year that Abbott has been recognized for sustainability through its inclusion on the DJSI, including both the Dow Jones Sustainability World Index and North America Index.

"We work to create sustainable business solutions that benefit not just Abbott and the people who use our products, but the broader community, as well," said Miles D. White, chairman and chief executive officer, Abbott.

Abbott earned the highest industry scores across all three areas of economic, environmental and social performance. The company's score of 87 was more than double the average score of 41 for other companies in the industry.

Abbott's continued recognition as an industry leader by the DJSI demonstrates the company's longstanding commitment to strengthen the sustainability of its business operations. One example: the company's ambitious 2020 environmental goals, which aim to help protect the planet while boosting efficiency and reducing costs. Since 2010, Abbott has reduced carbon emissions by 28 percent, water use by 18 percent and waste by 39 percent (all adjusted for sales).

Abbott achieved the top industry scores in 16 of DJSI's 25 specific economic, environmental and social criteria, including innovation management, corporate governance, codes of business conduct, talent attraction and retention, human capital development, supply chain management, customer relationship management, materiality, strategy to improve access to drugs or products, health outcome contribution, risk and crisis management, tax strategy, environmental reporting, operational eco-efficiency, corporate citizenship and philanthropy, and social reporting.
